

Cleveland. Aug 17 - 1854.

Mr W Garrison,

Many thanks for your kind message thro' Mr May.
Your time is too precious to be spent in epistolizing me, & much as I should prize a line from your pen I don't wish to possess this treasure while it is so much more precious to the oppressed slave. Our hearts are well with you, we follow you father's kind regards Yours truly

Wm L Garrison

in your watchings, your perils, your toils, & your assemblings, & fervently seek for them all a blessing from on high. My Father continues much the same, his mind in full vigor, & his social tastes and enjoyments as strong as ever, but his bodily strength does not improve, & long sustained mental effort fatigues & injures him.

He has just been reading a little book which pleases him very much, as containing a great deal of good sense in a very small compass & in very intelligible language.

He does not know the Author but thinks there is internal evidence of its being written by Sir Benjamin Brodie, one of the most experienced & eminent medical men in this country. His reason for attributing the book to this gentleman is I believe only the similarity of <sup>its</sup> ~~the~~ reasoning to that adopted in another work just published by the same Author entitled "Psychological Enquiries." <sup>We</sup> have commissioned Mr Brown to procure a copy for you, if he fails it shall be sent in the Bazaar Box, my Father will write you home in it himself. There is much I would gladly say to you, but must turn to discharging my debts to <sup>my</sup> other American correspondents. Poor Mr Chamerooyou is in such a muddle with that letter he wrote me a few weeks ago of which I sent to Mr May that there is no disentangling them at present. Mr G. Thompson has taken the matter in hand, so you may feel satisfied it is in
